

PIMA COMMUNITY COLLEGE TRANSFER PATHWAY

FAMILY STUDIES & HUMAN DEVELOPMENT B.S.

A versatile major, Family Studies and Human Development prepares students for careers and graduate training in a variety of fields such as human services, social policy, community and public health, counseling, social work, medicine, nursing, occupational therapy, gerontology, child/elder advocacy, criminal justice/law, and child life specialist professions. Students are encouraged to choose a minor in a career-related area. They may choose a minor outside of the department or opt to take courses in a chosen thematic minor carefully structured by students and their advisors, in order to prepare for specialized career paths or graduate school admission.
